Question: What is a sentence?

Answer:

Directions: Underline any maroon words that appear in the video. These are keywords and concepts.

Subject

A subject is the “what” of the sentence.
It lets you know what the sentence will be about.

The subject of a sentence is the person, place, thing, or idea (noun) that is doing or being something.

Example:

1. Darth Vader sliced off my right hand.

Types of subjects:

- Simple
- Complete
- Compound

Simple Subject

A simple subject is a subject that has just one noun/pronoun as the focus of the sentence.

This means that only one noun/pronoun does the action/connects to the verb of the sentence.

Example:

2. Mick decided to start a food fight.

Complete Subject

The complete subject is who or what is doing the verb plus all of the modifiers [descriptive words] that go with it.

Example:

3. My crazy life is out of control.

Compound Subject

A compound subject contains two or more simple subjects that have the same verb or verb phrase.

They are usually linked together with the conjunctions: and, or, or nor.

Example:

4. Becky and Ryan will call us when they get back from their camping trip to "Never Going to Live Falls."
