Simple Sentence

A simple sentence is the most basic sentence one can compose. It consists of a subject and a predicate (1 independent clause).

Example: The vivacious velociraptor performed a tap dance.

Note: "Vivacious" is an example of a Word of the Week.

Simple Sentence Formula

Simple Sentence=1 Independent Clause (1 IDC)

Example: I went absolutely crazy during the quarantine.

Example: Underwater basket weaving is a high octane sport!

Why are simple sentences important?

Not only do simple sentences act as the foundation for sentence structures, but they also have strong rhetorical effects.

By using a simple sentence, it makes the information concise and direct, while also adding emphasis.

The first sentence from the novel The Stranger by Albert Camus is a profound and simple sentence: "Mother died today."
It creates an intense emphasis that drew the reader's eye right to the sentence.
